Out of the dusty past I see
not the hero of the history book,
nor the hero of some propagandist's dream,
but the timid soul of the plodding man.

He has many distinct features each proclaiming him to be not just one of the masses, a tool of the Isms,
but the quintessence of a thousand years
of culture.

On his brow is etched
the untold toils and cares of time
and in his heart
is the burden of a world on fire.

Within his visage exists
not only the bravest but the most cringing coward,
saint and sinner, the best and worst,
the genius and the fool,
the epitome of all foibles,
the greatest possibilities
of mankind.

And then I realize that this is the portrait of the summation of all my ancestors -
great and small - who make up me,
not cold impersonal names on a family tree
but, in former times,
real live human beings
who have left their marks
on time and
on ME.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ON THE PARENTAGE OF IRENE (STEDMAN) DAINS, 1771-1860
Contributed by Boyd D. Preston, Charlotte, Mich.

In an article entitled "Some Descendants of Abraham Dains and Sarah Peake" which appeared in the DSGR Magazine, Vol. 8, 1945, we read on page 98 that "Ephraim Dains (4) son of Henry (3) ... married Dec. 15, 1789 in Hudson, N.Y., or Coxhackie, Green Co., N.Y., Irene Steadman, born Jan. 3, 1771 and died Feb. 15, 1860 at Redford, Mich. Irene's father was Edmund Steadman who resided in Jerusalem, N.Y., and received a pension there in 1818."

However, in respect to this latter statement regarding Irene Stedman's parentage, the following records seem to warrant our thoughtful consideration. These data are contained in a Bible, printed 1818 at Hartford (Conn.) by Hudson and Co., which Bible is inscribed as "A Present to Samuel Stedman by the Essex Bible Society, A. J. Morse, (?) Agent."

"The record of Our Marriage and birth of our children
We was Married July 6th 1768
In the 24th year of my age
And the 23rd year of her age
Nabby was born April 28th 1796 (sic)
Irene was born Jany 3rd 1771
Jomny was born Octr 28 1773
Therdosha was born Novr 1775
died August 26, 1776
Samuel was born July 7th 1777
and died April 23, 1814
Sophronia was born Decbr 25 1779
Saturday night Christmas
Cynthia was born the last day of Octbr 1789
Saturday 9 o'clock
Married Novbr 23rd 1811"

Obviously, considering the publication date of this Bible together with the general arrangement and handwriting of the entries, these records were copied in, all at once, some forty to fifty years after the events took place. It is suggested therefore that the last two digits of Nabby's birthdate were reversed in copying and that she was actually born on April 28, 1769 - a date quite logical and consistant with the rest of the data.

On other pages of the Bible these further records and endorsements appear:

"Samuel Steadman Died 20 April 1831"

"Ephraim Dains Died July 7th 1836 in Redford, Wayne Co., M.T. being Aged 84 years & 3 days"

"Irene Dains was 89 years and 11 days

"A Present to William T. Cooley"

This last named William T. Cooley was a son of Edwin and Lydia Ann (Logan) Cooley, a grandson of Thomas and Orpha (Dains) Logan, a great-grandson of Ephraim and Irene (Steadman) Dains and hence a lineal descendant of Samuel Stedman, original owner of the Bible.

From this family record, now in the possession of the contributor, it is evident that Irene (Stedman) Dains was actually a daughter of Samuel Stedman rather than of Edmund Stedman as previously alleged. In the Farmington, Conn. Vital Records (Vol. IRL7, p. 439) Irena is listed as a daughter of Samuel Stedman, Jr., born Jan. 2, 1771; the baptisms of her siblings, Theodoshia, Sophronia and Samuel, as well as Theodoshia's death are noted in the "Church Records of Farmington, Conn.", where they are mentioned as children of Samuel Stedman, Jr. (NEHG Register, Vol. 39, pp. 119, 120, 242 and Vol. 40, p. 32)

PENNSYLVANIA SURVIVORS OF THE WAR OF 1812
Contributed by Frank Roy Kepler

On Sept. 11, 1876, sixty-three years after Commodore Oliver H. Perry's victory on Lake Erie, twenty-five time-bronzed veterans of the Association of the War of 1812, resident in the north-western section of Pennsylvania, gathered in Meadville, Pa., for their third annual reunion.

From the Crawford Democrat, Meadville, Pa., Sept. 16, 1876:

"Sam Bill Kepler, of the Cullum House, welcomed them as cordially as ever, while Mrs. Kepler made them all comfortable and at home. About 1 o'clock dinner was announced and twenty-five of the old veterans with a large number of their friends sat down to one of those substantial and filling repasts that make the Cullum House famous, while the Citizens' Cornet Band did their best in the way of music."

"Then the company adjourned to Campfield Garden, where photographs of the veterans were taken by Mr. Dennington and short addresses made by Hon. James Sheakley, Hon. W. C. Plummer and Hon. George B. Delamater."

"After the speeches they returned to the hotel and gradually departed for their homes. The following is a list of those present, with their age and brief memorandum of their service during the war, which was collected by Capt. Strauss of the Cullum House:

DYCKMAN - NAGEL CEMETERY, NEW YORK CITY
Contributed by Mr. Fred C. Haacker, New York City

This ancient burial ground, formerly located near the northernmost end of Manhattan Island, had its beginnings in the eighteenth century; it was usually called the Dyckman Burial Ground, or in more recent times, the Nagel Graveyard. Strange as it may seem, there are no existing records of members of the Nagel family interred within its bounds.

Records of burials in this old cemetery are far from complete. Gravestone inscriptions have been copied by Edsall in 1881(1), by Eardeley in 1908(2) and by Spies in 1916(3). Also some additional data was obtained in 1926 when the land was taken over by the City of New York for transit facilities.

From time to time a number of bodies were removed from this to other cemeteries, notably members of the Dyckman family. (4) Edsall in 1881 lists the names of 64 persons and states that, even at that date many "ancient headstones were not decipherable". Eardeley in 1908 lists but 50 names and calls attention to "many rough stones, cemetery dilapidated and being removed." It is noticeable that the Eardeley records do not include the Dyckman burials. But Eardeley has some names not recorded by Edsall, particularly inscriptions for several infants. Spies records but 27 inscriptions in 1916 and notes that the Dyckman bodies have been removed to "Oakland Cemetery" in Yonkers. (5) Some of these Dyckman family removals occurred as early as the late 1880's.

In 1926 the City of New York disinterred from this old graveyard 417 bodies, which were removed to Woodlawn Cemetery and suitably reinterred there. Of these it was possible to identify but 67, and 51 of those identified were by means of name plates and not by gravestones.

The names of these identified dead are presented here with references for those whose headstone inscriptions have previously been collected:

At the January meeting a packed room heard Mrs. Esther B. Loughin of the Michigan State Library, and head of its Michigan, Local and Family History Section. Her subject was "A Date With the State Library." Mrs. Loughin, who was accompanied by some of her staff, gave an intimate and fascinating description of the work and purposes of the Michigan State Library, as it co-operates closely with other libraries, including the Burton Historical Collection, and with state and local historical groups. The main interest of Mrs. Loughin's section is history of Michigan families and Michigan communities.

To develop its specialty, her library has on microfilm the 1820 Territorial Census for Michigan (only one available anywhere), 1850 Census for Michigan, Michigan Census from 1850 through 1880 for material other than population, 1800 Census for New York, and 1850 Census for Ohio, and is buying the 1850 Census for New York. It has special history collections for Ingham, Washtenaw, Shiawassee and Newago Counties, and the City of Kalamazoo.

There is much give and take with others. The Daughters of American Colonists has filmed first land records of Michigan northward as far as Bay City. These give name of purchaser and date, and in half the cases the county or state from which the purchaser came. The library is working with county clerks to film marriage records not otherwise turned in, with twelve counties already done. Copies of these films are being placed in other libraries, including Burton, Grand Rapids, Toledo, Connecticut State, and D.A.R. in Washington. Farmington Church records have been furnished by the clergyman's granddaughter. The Shiawassee County Census for 1860 is being copied. Our own member, Mrs. George W. Corliss, of South Haven, has completely indexed marriage records and first land records for Van Buren County.

As for the immediate future, the staff is being increased. Also, the library is experimenting with loaning of books, and loaning of microfilms to persons with readers. At Michigan State Library, hours are 8:00 to 5:30 on weekdays, except 9:00 to 1:00 on Saturday.

The Honorable George A. Dondero, Member of Congress for the 18th Michigan District, was the speaker for the February meeting, held on Lincoln's Birthday. An eager audience listened intently as he talked on "Personal Acquaintance With the Descendants of President Lincoln."

Mr. Dondero began by referring to Abraham Lincoln as that "most uncommon commoner" and "the greatest symbol of freedom this world has ever known."

Abraham Lincoln and Mary Todd had four sons, the last three dying young. The oldest son, Robert Todd Lincoln, lived to the age of eighty-three, dying in 1926. He had three children: Abraham Lincoln, Mary Lincoln and Jessie Harlan Lincoln. Abraham died at the age of seventeen. Mary married Charles Isham and had a son, Lincoln Isham, now living at Dorset, Vermont. Jessie married Warren Beckwith and had two children likewise now living, Mary Lincoln Beckwith and Robert Todd Lincoln Beckwith, the latter's home being in Washington. These three great-grandchildren of President Lincoln are his only living descendants. They have no heirs.

Robert Todd Lincoln was a lawyer, a graduate of Harvard, and member of General Grant's staff. He once told the speaker about riding by horse from Appomattox to Washington, arriving a few hours before his father's assassination. He is buried in Arlington Cemetery.

Fervent tribute was paid Mary Todd Lincoln. "She had a career that for tragedy and sorrow has no parallel in American history." She lost three young sons, lived in the White House through the Civil War, and was the only one of her parents' fourteen children loyal to the North. Her husband was slain at her side, with his blood gushing over her gown. She was later almost an exile in Europe. Then, able to endure no more, she lost her mind. She died in 1882. "The American people owe a great debt of gratitude to Mary Todd." Suggested reading was a recent book, Mary Lincoln, Biography of a Marriage, by Ruth Randall.

Among Mr. Dondero's Lincoln relics is the letter written by eleven-year-old Grace Bedell, urging Abraham Lincoln to grow a beard. The letter was answered and the advice taken. Her letter was kept through the four years in the White House. Mrs. Robert Todd Lincoln gave it to the speaker, who later visited Grace Bedell, then eighty years of age, on the Pacific Coast. He also has the clothes brush used by Abraham Lincoln while President.

He has seen many other Lincoln heirlooms. At the home of Robert Todd Lincoln Beckwith he was shown a Winchester rifle, with mechanism in gold. A gift to the President, it was marked "Abraham Lincoln, 1862." This great-grandson carried daily the watch and chain worn by Tad Lincoln in the famous portrait with his President father. Lincoln Isham has shown the speaker Abraham Lincoln's check, written to buy a horse for Robert Todd Lincoln in the Civil War. President Lincoln's library is in Manchester, Vermont, where his eldest son lived and died.

To his descendants and to all the world, Abraham Lincoln still lives.

A LETTER TO JENNY HUNTER

Dear Jenny:

My theme this time is state libraries. Have you visited a state library lately? Are you aware of their active interest in the local searcher and the efforts being made to collect data pertaining to the early history of their particular region? Visit a state library and then; like me, you'll take off your hat to the librarians for what they are accomplishing -- often under limitations of staff, facilities, space and/or money.

The following notes result from just a few hours spent in libraries on a recent trip. Unquestionably each library visited had much more material than I have "noted" -- but perhaps my notes will help to whet your interest and take you visiting too.

In Indianapolis, Indiana, the State Library is at 140 North Senate St. opposite the Indiana State House. The genealogical section contains also the "Eugene Haslet Darrach Memorial Library" from the Indianapolis Public Library; everything in town is in the one spot. In 1950 they published a comprehensive little handbook, with specimen charts and many pertinent and helpful suggestions. Items I found of particular interest included ... the 1820 and 1830 federal census for Indiana, indexed, with excellent mimeographed worksheets; the 1840-1880 census microfilms for Indiana; indexed mortality schedules; Wayne County Friends' records; cemetery records, by cemeteries; war records for 1812 soldiers from Indiana available in photostat rosters, indexed.

Their current project, about one half done, is the filming of county vital and probate materials. They have started with the southeastern counties and are "working their way up". If the material has already been made available through the D.A.R., it is not duplicated. Also the Indiana State Archives (in the same building) has a name file on early Indiana land records. Indiana newspapers and "first tract books" are in the State Auditor's office. Many county histories were indexed during WPA days.

In Springfield, Illinois, the State Library is in the Centennial Building, along with the special historical displays and the famous Lincoln Museum. The Illinois State Historical Library's specialty (one of them) is Civil War history. Some family genealogies and county histories are available on microcards. The newspaper files are limited to Illinois but are most complete. Some have been indexed. It is estimated that they have at least 50,000 volumes of interest to the student of genealogy or local history.

In an adjoining building, the State Archives have microfilms of the federal census for Illinois from 1840 to 1880 inclusive and the original schedules of the state census for 1835, 1845 and 1855. Here they are indexing the 1850 census and were as far as "C" in the 102 counties to be covered (remember, Cook County is Illinois' largest). A pamphlet on the "Counties of Illinois" with 23 maps showing the evolution of the county boundaries made me wish for similar publications for other states. The index in the State Archives has other material besides census data. One of my elusive Briggs boys was a candidate for coroner in Monroe County in 1824 -- which lent credence to the family legend that he took a flatboat out of Ohio after the yellow fever of 1823.

In Madison, Wisconsin, the State Historical Library is on the University campus and has generous hours to accommodate students. This is the home of the famous Draper Collection of manuscripts, so valuable for the Northwest Territory scholar. Very complete collections of family and local histories are found in the "stacks", where I could have taken a typewriter and worked for days. Their newspaper files are very complete, with easels and comfortable chairs by outside windows and also readers for microfilm work.

The books of the federal census for 1850, 1860 and 1870 are on hand, indexed! One can also use a microfilm of the 1880 census in the manuscript section. At Wisconsin, also, I was interested to learn that they are in the process of acquiring census records on microfilm for other sections I would call "source states": the 13 original states; Kentucky, Tennessee, Vermont, Maine; and of course the states in the Northwest Territory. Microfilms of original land grants were found in the manuscript section.

Other census records and vital statistics can be found in the State Archivist's office, also in the Historical Library Building and in the Bureau of Vital Statistics in the State Office Building. I had forgotten that many state offices are not open on Saturdays, so I still have some unfinished business for my next trip.

The searcher for Wisconsin material will find the "Wisconsin Index" most helpful, as it covers newspaper material, as well as books, county histories, etc.

In these state libraries, I found mimeographed worksheets; helpful bulletins; possibilities for obtaining microfilms, photostats or for using Contoura for copying. And most of all, I found helpful and interested librarians. In every case, I left feeling that I had made new friends.

So, again -- HAPPY HUNTING!

Descendants of Edward Dudley, Immigrant to Virginia

Dudley Castle, located near the town of Dudley in Staffordshire, England, was built by Dudo, a Saxon, about A.D. 700, but it was occupied as early as 1079 by the family of de Sutton. Thus, in the 14th century, when the de Suttons became a baronial family, the title Baron Dudley came into use by its titular head; and the surname of Dudley was assumed by the descendants of Sir John de Sutton, 4th Baron Dudley, who died in 1487.

To Virginia in 1637 came Edward Dudley, a seventh generation descendant of the 4th Baron Dudley, and progenitor of many of the Dudley families of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and Indiana. He received land in York Co., Va. and in 1654 was rated there for tithes; in 1655 Elizabeth (Pritchard) Dudley, his widow, petitioned the Court of Lancaster County asking for a survey and division of 300 acres of land formerly patented by her husband. Elizabeth remarried about 1657 John Robinson and moved to York County, where she died in 1691. The Dudley children were Elizabeth, Robert of Middlesex County, William, Grace, Bridget and Richard. In 1645 Richard married Mary Sewell and settled in Lower Norfolk County; later he moved to Gloucester County, where in 1675 he was High Sheriff and Colonel of Militia. His children were Ambrose, in the House of Burgesses 1710, Robert, Thomas and James.

Born in Lower Norfolk County in 1647, Robert Dudley above came to Gloucester County with his father, then in 1680 moved to Middlesex County, where in 1682 he was a vestryman of Christ Church Parish and a member of the House of Burgesses in 1685. About 1690 he married Elizabeth Ransom; in his will of 1701 he is termed Major Robert Dudley and his heirs are named as Avarilla and Robert. This latter Robert was born 1691 and died intestate in Middlesex Co., Va. about 1745. He married Elizabeth Curtis and had children Elizabeth, Robert, Ambrose and Christopher. Christopher, born 1715, went from Caroline Co., Va. in 1763 to Halifax Co., N.C.; he was twice married, first to Elizabeth (?), and died in 1781. His will named his children: Anne, Guilford, Ransom, Elizabeth, Agatha, Christopher, Sarah and Linton.

Guilford Dudley above organized a volunteer military company in 1774 at Halifax Co., N.C. and later attained the rank of colonel. In the National Archives, written in his own hand, is a thirty page record of his service in the Revolution. In 1807 he migrated to Williamson Co., Tenn., where he died in 1833. After his death his widow, Sarah Bland (Eaton) Dudley filed for a widow's pension and for proof of marriage sent in the family record page from their Bible. Their children were Frances Elizabeth, Frances Bland, Julia, Theodore, Thomas, Elizabeth, Sarah, Guilford, Judith, Caroline, Virginia and Mary.

When Guilford migrated to Tennessee, it is believed he was accompanied by his brother Ransom Dudley, who by 1817 was operating a horse drawn mill in Washington Co., Ind. Ransom's wife Rhoda (?) was born in North Carolina. When this family came into the wilderness the records stopped, but their known children were Ransom Jr., Thomas and Latilla who married Jehu Stewart.

Many Kentucky Dudleys are descended from Robert, son of William a great grandson of the Virginia immigrant. William was born in 1696 and married Judith Johnson. In 1719 Thomas Dudley, another descendant of the original Edward, patented lands in Currituck Co., N.C. and died there in 1755. His wife was Mary Booth.

A Sgt. George Dudley, on the pension list in 1833, was born near Fayetteville, N.C. and later lived in Georgia. At Fayetteville, N.C. there was also a Major Richard Dudley, born 1769, who married in 1792 Ann Newberry. One of their sons, Christopher born 1801, became a lawyer, married in 1834 Rebecca Powe Robeson and later lived in Bennettsville, S.C.

It is interesting to note the given names of Guilford, Ambrose and Christopher among the descendants of Edward Dudley and also in other Dudley families where this relationship has not been proved. Guilford was introduced into the family when John Dudley, son of Sir Edmund born in 1462, married Jane daughter of Sir Edward Guilford. This same John had a son Ambrose, Earl of Warwick. Christopher dates back to a grandfather of the Virginia immigrant, Robert Dudley who was burned at the stake in 1603; he married Anne daughter of Christopher Wood. Ransom came into the Virginia family about 1690 when Major Robert Dudley married Elizabeth Ransom.

Dudley queries may be addressed to Mrs. C. L. Hathaway, 15343 Whitcomb, Detroit 27, Mich.

NOTES OF THE SOCIETY

We wish to express here our appreciation for the interest and generosity of our members who have maintained contributing and sustaining memberships in the Society. Our dues are low, so low, in fact, that our activities must depend heavily on extra contributions from the membership. Some can give time; others have special skills, facilities or talents which are at the disposal of the organization; those who are in a position to do so may make gifts of money. Last year there were 23 contributing and 3 sustaining members on our rolls. We thank them for their part in our success.

HATS OFF! We take great pleasure in mentioning the following recent publications by members of our Society: The History of Sunderland, Mass., Vol. II, with its genealogical section edited by Mr. Frederick Warner of North Amherst, Mass. . . Inscriptions from Greenwood Cemetery, Reedsburg, Wis., copied by Dorris M. Berning of Reedsburg, Wis., indexed and published by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Townsend of West Hartford, Conn. . . Centennial History of Volusia Co., Fla., compiled and edited by Mrs. John E. Hebel of Daytona Beach, Fla. . . A collection of twelve poems written by the late Norman Irving Taylor, selected, printed and distributed by Mrs. Taylor in a beautiful little volume entitled simply Verse. . . Hutchins lately of Grosse Isle, whose burial from St. Paul's was recorded in the February DSGR Magazine under the name of Hutchnis. Teh! Teh!
